Sharon, Vt., Dec. 23.—Several hundred members of the Mormon church and as many others have come here to attend the dedication of the magnificent monument erected in memory of Joseph Smith, the founder of Mormonism. Today is the hundredth anniversary of Joseph Smith's birth and the day was selected for the dedication on that account. The monument, which is a stone structure of large dimensions, stands on the farm on which, according to reliable documentary proof, Joseph Smith was born one hundred years ago. In a recess under the ten-ton capstone of the monument a copper casket has been placed, which contains copies of the Bible, the Book of Mormon, the deed to the farm upon which the monument stands, various records, pictures and coins of the present time. The dedication ceremony will be held this afternoon and will be conducted by Joseph F. Smith, a direct descendant of the founder of the Mormon church, who is also the trustee of the property upon which the monument is located.

WARDE LAST NIGHT

A small, but very appreciative audience was in attendance at the Elks' opera house last night to greet the famous exponent of Shakespearean plays, Frederick Warde, who gave an excellent interpretation of that great Shakespearean tragedy, "Julius Caesar."

Warde, at one time leading star in the all-star combination of Louis James, Katherine Kidder and himself, who toured the country in a repertory of Shakespearean plays, was at his best last night in interpreting the lines given by the bard of Avon to Marc Antony, Julius Caesar, Cassius and Brutus, and held the attention of his audience very closely.

Warde, himself an ardent student of what lies beneath the words and actions of Shakespeare's characters, gave a very illuminating explanation of the different passages in the tragedy, and was especially strong in his interpretation of the forum speech of Marc Antony over the dead body of his friend, Caesar. In the soliloquies of Cassius and Brutus he also displayed to advantage his great talent as an interpreter of Shakespearean roles.

At the close of the reading Warde was entertained by the members of the local Elks' lodge, the wives of the members being present, and a thoroughly delightful hour was spent entertaining and being entertained by one of America's foremost tragedians.
